International and Global Studies Minor

London Paths

Planning an IQP, MQP or Humanities project in London? Then consider an International and Global Studies minor with a “London track.”

A project at London and three courses from the humanities and arts or social science requirements may count towards the minor. Double-counted courses may be counted anywhere across the International and Global Studies “core” or “electives.” Students must take the senior seminar (INTL 4100) and two other courses for this minor that do not count for another degree requirement.

Here are several examples of a London track. These are merely examples and the courses you choose could be different.

1 unit International and Global Core
   - INTL 1100 Introduction to International and Global Studies
   - INTL 2100 Approaches to Global Studies
   - INTL 4100 Senior Seminar in International and Global Studies
1 unit International and Global Electives (Humanities, Social Science or Business courses)
   - HI 2324 The British Empire
   - HI 2320 Modern European History
   - ID 2050 Social Science Research for the IQP
IQP at London

OR:

1 unit International and Global Core
   - HI 1322 Introduction to European Cultural History
   - HI 2324 The British Empire
   - INTL 4100 Senior Seminar in International and Global Studies
1 unit International and Global Electives (Humanities, Social Science or Business courses)
   - FY 1100 Great Problems Seminar
   - GOV 1320 Topics in International Politics
   - PSY 2406 Cross-Cultural Psychology: Human Behavior in Global Perspective
IQP, MQP or Humanities and Arts Project at London

The “London track” is a sample program that demonstrates how students with experience at the London Project Center may shape the minor to meet their goals. You don’t need to follow a “track” to do the minor. For further information about the program, consult: http://www.wpi.edu/+IN.
