International and Global Studies Minor

Pacific Antipodes Paths

Planning an IQP “down under” in Australia or New Zealand? Then consider an International and Global Studies minor with a “Pacific Antipodes track.”

An IQP at Melbourne or Wellington and three courses from the humanities and arts or social science requirements may count towards the minor. Double-counted courses may be counted anywhere across the International and Global Studies “core” or “electives.” Students must take the senior seminar (INTL 4100) and two other courses for this minor that do not count for another degree requirement.

Here are several examples of a Pacific Antipodes track. These are merely examples and the courses you choose could be different.

1 unit International and Global Core
   INTL 1100 Introduction to International and Global Studies
   HI 2324 The British Empire
   INTL 4100 Senior Seminar in International and Global Studies

1 unit International and Global Electives (Humanities, Social Science or Business courses)
   ID 2050 Social Science Research for the IQP
   FY 1100 Great Problems Seminar
   HI 2341 Contemporary World Issues in Historical Perspective

IQP at Melbourne or Wellington

OR:

1 unit International and Global Core
   INTL 2100 Approaches to Global Studies
   ID 2050 Social Science Research for the IQP
   INTL 4100 Senior Seminar in International and Global Studies

1 unit International and Global Electives (Humanities, Social Science or Business courses)
   ENV 1100 Introduction to Environmental Studies
   HI 2324 The British Empire
   GOV 2319 Global Environmental Politics

IQP at Wellington or Melbourne

The “Pacific Antipodes track” is a sample program that demonstrates how students with experience in Australia or New Zealand may shape the minor to meet their goals. You don’t need to follow a “track” to do the minor. For further information about the program, consult: http://www.wpi.edu/+IN.
