International and Global Studies Minor

Sustainable Development and the Developing World Paths

Project Centers: Costa Rica, India, Morocco, Namibia, Panama, Paraguay, South Africa, Thailand

Description: This is for students interested in non-western societies and cultures and the potential and problems of international development.

A global project and three courses from the humanities and arts or social science requirements may count towards the minor. Double-counted courses may be counted anywhere across the International and Global Studies “core” or “electives.” Students must take the senior seminar (INTL 4100) and two other courses for this minor that do not count for another degree requirement.

Here are several examples of a Sustainable Development and the Developing World track. These are merely examples and the courses you choose could be different.

1 unit International and Global Core
- INTL 1100 Introduction to International and Global Studies
- ID 2050 Social Science Research for the IQP
- INTL 4100 Senior Seminar in International and Global Studies

1 unit International and Global Electives (pick any 3 courses)
- HI 1313 The US and the World
- HI 1341 Introduction to Global History
- HI 2341 Contemporary World Issues in Historical Perspective
- HI 3335 Topics in the History of Non-Western Science and Technology
- HI 3341 Topics in Imperial and Postcolonial History
- HU 2441 African History and Culture
- HU 224X Global Justice and Development
- ECON 2125 Development Economics
- ENV 250X Growth, Development and Environmental Justice in China
- ENV 2600 Environmental Problems in the Developing World
- GOV1320 Topics in International Politics
- GOV 2319 Global Environmental Politics
- SOC 124X Introduction to Comparative Sociology and Globalization

IQP at an Overseas Project Center

Reminder: There are many ways to mix and match courses to count for International Studies. This is just one possible course trajectory. You don’t need to follow a “track” to do the minor.

Please Note: Many HU 3900 Inquiry Seminars fall into this category but can’t count toward an International Studies major or minor. Consult the instructor. Read more: http://www.wpi.edu/+IN
